

Royal Literary Fund

NEWNHAM AND SELWYN COLLEGES
FREE confidential service to help you improve your writing skills – and your grades

Students of any discipline, at any level of study (from 1st year to postgraduate) – and staff – are welcome to book an online session with our Royal Literary Fund Writing Fellow: a professional, published author whose role is to help you strengthen your writing.

Sign up for a 50-minute one-to-one tutorial to help you:

- Plan your study time.
- Focus your reading for essay, dissertation or thesis writing.
- Express your ideas more clearly and confidently.
- Answer grammar and punctuation questions.
- Discover reading to improve your writing and editing skills.
- Increase your writing skills with the aim of improving your grades.
- Improve any academic writing – essays, reports, theses, dissertations, book chapters.

(Please note, RLF Fellows do not undertake proof-reading.)

Meet your Fellow:

Zoë is a respected music biographer and novelist, known particularly for her work in support of women and marginalised cultural figures. The author of 13 books, her debut novel was shortlisted for the Virginia Prize, and UK music writing festival Louder Than Words announced her as their 'Luminary' in 2015. More information can be found at Zoë's website: <http://www.zoehowe.com>.

WHEN?

Appointments are available on Tuesdays & Wednesdays 10.00am – 5.00pm

WHERE?

Zoë will conduct sessions for Michaelmas term remotely via video-conferencing. Details given upon booking.

HOW?

Book your appointment by email:
zoe.howe@rlfeducation.org.uk